

THE PEOPLE ARE WINNING.

Consumers Surely Forcing the Trust Bread Out of the Market.

HARVEST FOR SMALL BAKERS.

There Are 1,500 of Them and They Turn Out a Three-Cent Loaf.

THE PUBLIC PAYS FOUR CENTS.

In Brooklyn and New Jersey the Same Determined Fight Is Being Made.

The people's eyes have been opened by "The Evening World" to the fact that they are paying too much for their bread. As always happens when they find that they have been imposed upon, the people have set about righting matters.

Thoroughly convinced by "The Evening World's" statements of the enormous profits realized by the wholesale bakers that it is time to lend a hand in the good work of reducing the price of the five-cent loaf, consumers all over the city are refusing to buy bread baked by the members of the Wholesale Bakers' Association, and are demanding of the grocers the four-cent loaves which the small bakers have begun to furnish. It is the Wholesale Bakers' Association, composed of sixteen of the largest bakeries in this city, which is keeping up the price of bread. Its members have grown rich through the combine which they established several years ago. In the face of the fact that the great reduction in the price of flour has enabled bakers not in the Association to sell bread at three cents a loaf and make money, the big firms in the combine have, by means of their immense resources, been able to offer the retailers inducements, such as furnishing them with handsome cases in which to keep the bread, which enable them to control the bulk of the bread trade and at the same time keep up the price of the standard loaf.

Already the sales of the Wholesale Bakers' Association have fallen off to such an extent as to cause alarm. An instance of this remarkable reduction in the amount of bread sold by the Trust since "The Evening World" demonstrated that the consumer was being imposed upon, came to light yesterday when the manager of the concern, was endeavoring to show that the bakers were still struggling along on the narrow possible margin of profit, one of the drivers came in to turn over his collection of one-day-old bread. The driver's attention was called to the fact that that of the grocers who served had returned twenty-five loaves of bread, instead of the usual

"It isn't my fault," the driver explained. "The grocer says that he can't sell our bread for five cents since 'The Evening World' has been printing lies. He says that he is getting a supply from the small bakeries for three cents a loaf, and that the people won't buy more than four for it." The driver said that he heard the same story wherever he went, and that his return of one-day-old bread was his only recourse.

The utter fallacy of the Wholesale Bakers' Association's contention, that they can't furnish bread to retailers for less than five cents, is shown by the fact that many small concerns have been selling full-weight three-cent bread for over a week, and declare that they are making money.

The United States Bakery Company, in Bleeker street, is selling three-cent bread as fast as it can be baked, and the American Baking Company, in the same street, is doing the same thing. George H. Weber, of 51 Bank street, is doing a rushing trade, also, at the reduced rates.

Over in Brooklyn, Frederick Dwyer, of 33 Marion street, is furnishing his grocer customers with three-cent loaves as big as the ones sold by the Trust. He says that he is getting a supply from the small bakeries for three cents a loaf, and that the people won't buy more than four for it.

Mr. Bates says that it was "The Evening World" which influenced him to reduce his prices. "I find," he said, "that my business has been injured to such an extent that at three cents a loaf my bread business is making more money for me than before the cut. The profits are now as large as they were six months ago, when flour was much higher and I charged 5 cents a loaf for bread. Why, the other bakers are holding out is more than I can understand."

Further out in New Jersey "The Evening World's" fight is having the desired effect. In Rutherford, Grocer, who does a very large business on Park avenue, has stopped taking four-cent loaves from a Newark firm which has supplied him for years, and is now selling full weight loaves furnished by local bakers at four cents. Mr. Isenburgh's action, it is said, will soon be followed by all the other grocers in town. The bakers of Rutherford who went on strike last Sunday and started up a bakery on Rockaway avenue are delivering bread bearing union labels from bakers at such prices as make the combine's five-cent loaf out of the supply.

HELD UP A TRAIN.

But a Smart Messenger Saved Express Money.

MONTELL, Mo., Nov. 12.—(Press messenger train No. 1, due here at 6 o'clock tonight, was held up four miles east of Montell by two masked men, and the express car robbed.

The robbers boarded the front end of the mail car, which was next to the tender, and after the train started, they crawled to the engine and commanded the engineer to run to a certain point and stop. To save the life of the engineer, Express Messenger Chapman opened the safe, but he had succeeded in hiding all the money save $25 in currency, which he handed over to the robbers. The train pulled into Montell twenty minutes late, and the money spread rapidly. A posse was formed, but for want of a leader, it failed to pursue the bandits, who are supposed to be a part of Bill Cook's notorious gang.

THE STRANGLER'S WORK.

Another Denver Unfortunate Mysteriously Murdered.

DENVER, Nov. 12.—Another victim has been added to the list of women mysteriously strangled in disorderly houses in this city.

The victim was Kiku Oyama, a Japanese girl, twenty-four years old, who came to this country to attend the Chicago Exposition, and later came here to live with a countryman, Imi Oyama. The woman was found this morning in her room with a Turkish towel knotted about her neck.

She was breathing, but died soon after discovery. Her alleged lover and other Japanese have been arrested, but there is no evidence against them. This is the third case of the kind, and the unfortunate women of the city are horrified.

Possible that Cloak Manufacturers Will Leave It to the L.X.X.

Philadelphia and Other Cities New Control the Trade.

Suffering Among Strikers Is On the Increase.

It is hardly probable that the disastrous effect of the cloakmakers' strike has been given the consideration which it deserves.

There is a situation so grave that it has been suggested by one of the most important manufacturers in this city that the Committee of L.X.X. be called in and requested to look over the matter, that the public may see and appreciate what one strike can do for this city.

"Here is the point," said a leading manufacturer last night, "and it is one which neither myself, my firm nor any manufacturer can afford to ignore. Just two days ago I found we were running short on woollens, and I requested my purchasing clerk to order in a lot more. On account of the tremendous amount of goods we make up, we must necessarily deal with more than one house. My clerk sent the order to one of the largest mills in Philadelphia. We were immediately informed that there was no woolen in the market. We wrote to others, but invariably received the same answer."

"It struck me as rather queer that a house which did a business in the busy season of $500,000 a week should suddenly be compelled to refuse a profitable order. The result was that I investigated, and I found that the manufacturers of the West—of Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and the other cities had bought up practically all the woolen goods in the market, and we were left."

"The result? Why if the strike was declared off to-morrow we would not have enough woolen stock on hand to run our men three weeks."

I see the statement made in "The Evening World" that the cloak manufacturing business has fallen off from $12,000,000 to $5,000,000. That is absolutely correct, but mildly drawn, to say the least. It hasn't stopped at the $5,000,000.

IS ONE A MURDERER?

New York Detectives Capture Two of a "Knocker-Out" Gang.

Nicola Rossi and Marco Bonasarto were taken to the Tombs Court this morning, handcuffed to Detective-Sergis, Carey and Bonnell.

Rossi is said to be implicated in the murder of Michael Santuoso, Nov. 2, in a room over a restaurant at Seventh and Fitzwater streets, Philadelphia, by an overdose of "knockout drops." He was also robbed of $1,500.

Bonasarto is a known crook, and was recently released from prison. He is not implicated with the Santuoso murder.

"Knockout drops" were found on both prisoners when they were searched. On the way to Police Headquarters Rossi drew a glove from his pocket. The glove contained a loaded revolver. He turned it upon Carey, and but for the latter's quickness would have shot him. Justice Ryan remanded the prisoners until to-morrow to await the arrival of a warrant from Philadelphia.

Do not pass for a minute that because we have the handsomest furniture store in New York and sell the very finest goods, that we do not have moderate-priced things as well. We want the trade of true economists. We have furniture for the fat or for the man, and every piece of it, ornate or modern, is artistic and honest, and lower in price than like qualities can be bought for any place else in America.

No matter whether you pay $50 or $500, the price is right and the quality is right and the style is right—and the $50 buyer has our consideration and our consideration care just as much as the one who buys $500 worth.
